

The Voice of the People: Democracy comes to South Australia
Regional touring program 2007-2008

The History Trust of South Australia and State Electoral Office have put together a special travelling display to mark the 150th anniversary of South Australia's parliamentary democracy. The display is about our democratic, electoral and political history. A number of community-based museums and historical societies across South Australia also contributed their own local stories to this travelling display. Please refer to the History Trust media release for further details about the themes and stories explored in the display.

This travelling display highlights the main themes and stories from the exhibition by the same name, which is open to the public in the History Trust's Exhibition Gallery in the Drill Hall, Torrens Parade Ground, Victoria Drive, Adelaide, until 31 August 2007.

Resources for teachers using the display in their education programs are available on the History Trust website, www.history.sa.gov.au. On the front page of the website, click on to New Exhibitions and Events and follow the prompts.

For further information on the travelling display or teachers' resources, contact Kate Walsh, Manager, Community History Unit, History Trust of South Australia on 8203 9878, kwalsh@history.sa.gov.au.
